What Does Illinois Prairie Community Foundation Do?

Illinois Prairie Community Foundation connects people who care with causes that matter by offering philanthropic leadership, organization and grant-making for the long-term enrichment of our community.

- We encourage local philanthropy to meet local needs by providing donors with flexible, convenient giving options.
- We build community charitable endowments to preserve and improve the quality of life for all in McLean, DeWitt, Livingston and Logan counties now and far into the future.
- We provide grants to local nonprofit organizations to help them meet important community needs.
- We educate donors and communities about philanthropy.
- We facilitate and join in community partnerships to respond to pressing community issues.

You Can Make a Difference!

- Donate to our Annual Campaign before January 15. Your gift helps fund General Grants for important community programs in the fields of education, environment, health and wellness, and youth.
- Open a personal, family or business Donor Advised Fund. These funds provide the benefits of private foundations without the paperwork and make it easy to support organizations that are important to you.
- Create your own Endowment for specific charitable organizations, fields of interest or contribute to the Community Foundation's Field of Interest Endowments, which help provide grants to local nonprofit organizations.
- Join the Women to Women Giving Circle and support programs that help local women and children reach their highest potential.
- Donate to the YEP (Youth Engaged in Philanthropy) Endowment to help develop our next generation of community leaders.
- Join the growing number of businesses and professionals who support IPCF through the Community Partners program.
- Support our Fiscal Sponsorship or Field of Interest funds with financial and/or volunteer help; a strong nonprofit sector enriches the whole community.

2021 Philanthropists of the Year - Bloomington-Normal

Hank and Mary Campbell of Normal exemplify the spirit of philanthropy through their leadership and involvement in numerous community programs and organizations during the more than 45 years they have lived in Bloomington-Normal.

Both are retired from Illinois State University, where Hank was a Technology professor and Mary was a Social Work professor. Hank traveled and consulted nationally and internationally, sharing expertise in manufacturing and construction. Mary has exposed students to real world issues of poverty, homelessness and social injustice.

Mary co-founded and co-directed, with Feli Sebastian, Labyrinth Outreach Services in 2012 and Dreams Are Possible in 2018. Labyrinth serves women re-entering society after incarceration. With Dreams Are Possible, Hank and Mary, along with volunteers, transformed a 1910 grocery store on Bloomington's west side into a training center for low-income women. When starting Dreams Are Possible, Mary turned to IPCF to be the fiscal sponsor, effectively freeing her from administrative duties such as accepting donations and handling all the finances.

Together, Hank and Mary are involved with many organizations, including: LAMU for Preventative Care, which offers free healthcare education and screening in Kenya; M.J. Rhymer Family Dry Grove Nature Preserve, which they helped establish; and the Multi-Cultural Leadership Program, from which they received the Community Service Award in 2014 in recognition of their extensive leadership work in service to others, especially the underserved in the Bloomington-Normal community.

Hank is involved with Habitat for Humanity of McLean County, Friends Forever International, Oakdale Elementary School's Promise Council, Normal Rotary Club, Rotarians Against Malaria, CAST Connections Student Success Center at ISU and ISU's University Club Scholarships.

Mary is a member of Heartland Community College's Board of Trustees, volunteers for Center for Hope Food Pantry, Youth Global Citizens, Recycling Furniture for Families and Pass It On. She received the Grabill-Homan Community Peace Prize from ISU in 2015 and YWCA McLean County's Women of Distinction award in social services in 1990. She is a Master Naturalist.

In addition to volunteering their time and talents, the Campbells financially support numerous organizations in the community.

2021 Philanthropist of the Year - Outside Twin Cities

Dale Maley of Fairbury demonstrates the traits of being a philanthropist. His efforts have greatly benefited his hometown of Fairbury as well as Livingston and McLean counties.

A graduate of Fairbury-Cropsey High School, Dale received a degree in Agricultural Engineering at the University of Illinois and MBA at Illinois State University. He retired from Caterpillar Inc., after working for 37 years as an engineer.

He is currently president of the Fairbury Improvement Group, which identifies and implements solutions that improve the quality of life for Fairbury citizens; is vice president of the Fairbury Echoes Museum, and president of the Livingston County Historical Society.

During the past six years, the Fairbury Improvement Group has completed more than 50 different projects. The largest project the Fairbury Improvement Group accomplished was the complete renovation of Marsh Park. Dale spearheaded this project, using his engineering experience to save more than $100,000 in design fees for the project. This park is once again very popular with children and families.

Dale has also helped the village of Chatsworth preserve its local history by updating and expanding a book about the 1887 Chatsworth train wreck and writing a book about pioneer settler Franklin Oliver. He also donated engineering design services to the new Central Illinois Connection Center building in Chatsworth. Dale also helped the village of Colfax research its local history and designed four historic murals depicting this history. These murals will be used to bring history to life for current and future generations of Colfax citizens.

As president of the Livingston County Historical Society, Dale has volunteered to repair many items in two of the historic homes in Pontiac maintained by the historical society.

Dale has researched and written more than 20 history books about Fairbury and Livingston County. He has also written historical stories for the Fairbury Blade newspaper. He provided leadership and financial support to digitize the Blade newspaper, dating back to 1881. Blade archives can be accessed free of charge from the Dominy Memorial Library website.

In addition to donating his labor, Dale also makes financial contributions to various nonprofit groups.

2020 Philanthropists of the Year - Bloomington-Normal

Arthur and Camille Taylor of Bloomington have done so much for our local communities over many years, working tirelessly as community leaders.

Both have been instrumental in fighting racism in the Twin Cities. Arthur worked to increase communication and transparency between the community and the policy through his work on the Public Safety and Community Relations Board, a civilian review board established by Bloomington's City Council. Camille has a nearly 20-year involvement with Not in Our Town, whose mission is to stop hate, address bullying and make a safe, more inclusive community.

Arthur retired in 2017 from State Farm Insurance Cos. Camille retired in 2012 after 35 years with Normal Unit 5 School District.

Both are members, elders and past Deacons of First Christian Church in Bloomington. They both are volunteers for the Bloomington Center for the Performing Arts. She also served as a consultant with the development of Illinois Prairie Community Foundation's Youth Engaged in Philanthropy program.

2020 Philanthropist of the Year - Outside Twin Cities

Susan Hoblit of Atlanta has well demonstrated the traits of being a philanthropist, deeply benefiting her hometown of Atlanta, Logan County and all of Central Illinois.

She helped create and was actively involved in the Endow Atlanta Fund at Illinois Prairie Community Foundation, which has provided thousands of dollars for local projects in Atlanta for the last 10 years. This fund has been a model for other rural development endowments.

Susan is a trustee of the Board of Lincoln College and has served as a CASA (Court Appointed Special Advocate). She helped found the Baby Fold's Festival of Trees and served on the Board of Directors for the Baby Fold and IPCF.

She was instrumental in re-starting the Atlanta Community Band and has continued to play in it for 30 years. She also started a flower planting group, The Flower Buds, which maintains 40 containers of flowers in downtown Atlanta each summer. She has given generously to Endow Atlanta and has created two endowed scholarships at Illinois State University and one at Lincoln College.
